FROM OUR REGULAR CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, July 28, 1878. ARMY REORGANIZATION-PROPOSITION TO SEND

SUB-COMMITTEES TO THE FRONTIER. mmittee of Congress on the reorganization of the army, has not attended any of the meetings of the ommittee, which is holding its sessions at White aiphur Springs. He leaves to-morrow for his home and has sent word to the committee that in his inion it would be wise to change their place of seeing to some point on the frontier, where they bserve the workings of the army on active outy. He has urged upon Senator Butler the importance o forming sub-committees and visiting the important silitary posts in the West, where the routine of fronby actual observation in adopting proposed reforms and suggested changes. GENERAL WASHINGTON DESPATCHES.

WASHINGTON, July 28, 1878. THE INDICTED INTERNAL BEVENUE OFFICIALS. Mr. Earl, Assistant United States Attorney for South Sarolina, mentioned to-night that it was not certain as jet that Judge Bond would go to South Carolina to try the cases of the internal revenue officials under infictment for killing Ladd. The matter remains in statu que, and no definite determination has been reached in those cases, as has already been stated. Possibly the cases may be tried before Judge Bond at WASHINGTON LABOR TROUBLES.

PRECAUTIONS AGAINST A RECURRENCE OF THE OUTBREAKS-AGITATORS IN THE HANDS OF THE AUTHORITIES.

WASHINGTON, July 28, 1878. Extra precautions have been taken by the police authorities here to prevent a recurrence of the troubles among the laboring classes. A large force, well armed with revolvers and Springfield rifles, will be in readiness to-morrow to prevent outbreaks; but there is no great fear that a resert to extreme measures will be necessary. Several of the leaders in the riotous demonstrations yesterday were arrested and locked up. A well known agi-named Cohen, was arrested last or violating municipal orders against inpendiary language. To-day an agitator, named Sraham, came to Police Headquarters and asked to see Cohen. Being recognized as an enthusiastic promoter of yesterday's disorder, Graham was at some locked up.

It turns out that a colored man, who was shot yeslerday and who was supposed to have been an innotent spectator, was really one of the mob which was endeavoring to impede the movements of the police.

There has been talk of a large meeting to-morrow alght, but it will not be allowed unless responsible citizens are known to be interested in it, which thus far does not appear to be the case.

They succeeded in reaching the roof, where they were discovered by the guard, who immediately brought them down by several well directed shots, one of the prisoners receiving a shot which passed through his body, producing a probably fatal would.

THE ROSS-HANLAN RACE.

DISAPPOINTMENT AT THE DELAY-WAITING POR GOOD WEATHER.

ST. JOHN, N. B., July 28, 1878. Strangers and residents are alike disquieted by the delays in the Ross-Hanlan race. No blame is attached to eliber side in regard to the postponements. Ine weather from Thur day afternoon up to tonight has been uppropitious, and the course has never been suitable for a race in the boats now in use. To-day the weather has been clear, but high winds prevailed and the river was greatly agitated. It is quite calm and the prospect for to-morros is good. The race is fixed for the same hours as on Saturday-trom three to seven P. M. The suggestion baurday—from three to seven P. M. The suggestion is rew in the forencen is not looked upon with layor, though the chances of having the race come off soon would be vastly improved if the change were adopted. Ross was out for a spin to-day. Hankin spent a portion of the day in the city. A majority of the strangers who came to see the race returned home disappeinted, Many of those who remained will depart in the morning.

THE WITCHERY OF ABCHERY.

The "Witchery of Archery" is the attractive title of a little book by Maurice Thompson, published by Charles Scribner's Sons. Just at the present time, when the country is overrun with city people pining for amusement, nothing could be more apropos than a practical book on archery. Mr. Thompson is an enthusiast in this sport, and writes with so much unc-tion that he inspires his readers with an irresistible desire to experiment with the bow and arrow. It may well be said, he writes, that the powerful government of England rests upon a foundation of arrow heads; that its greatest glory has been achieved by the hard shooting of its archers; that its history's most brilliant pages have been graven or imperishable tablets with the bodkin-pointed shafts of the yeomen who drew bows at Crecy and Agincourt and all those fights where its supremacy over Europe was enforced by the "whistling gray goose wing." About the last of the eighteenth and the beginning of the nineteenth century archery took shape as par excellence the sport of the nobility and gentry of England, Scotland and Wales. In the United States, Mr. Thompson says, there existed no archery organization prior to the publication in some of the magazines of a number of his own papers descriptive of long bow shooting on the lawn and by field and flood. At present there are hundreds of clubs from Maine to Texas, the spread of the "l'exophilite mania" being so sudden that dealers were at a loss to supply the demand for archery tackle. Mr. Thompson is so great an admirer of bow shooting that he rather snubs the towling piece. When a man shoots with a bow, he says, it is his own vigor of body that drives the arrow and his own mind controls the missile's flight. When the archer hears his shaft hiss through the air with a force not to be equalled by those of his competitors, he feels justly proud of his superior man hood; his trained muscles and toughened thews have done the work. Not so with gun shooting. The rifle or lowling piece is charged with a power acting indehood; his trained muscles and toughened thews have done the work. Not so with gun shooting. The rile or lowling piece is charged with a power acting independently of nuscular operations, and will shoot just as powerfully for the achoelboy or the weaking as it will for the achieve. He thinks that the shotgun will soon exterminate game, and says that it has already exterminated it in many regions. The very sound of a gun is terrible to all wild things, "A few more years and hunting will be a thing of the past, unless some cheage takes place in our methods of destroying game. I would not," he continues, "be understood as decrying the shotgun when it is kept in its place and used only for the sort of game which cannot, from the nature of its habits, be shot except when flying, as the woodcock and marsh ned, the shipe and most water lowl, quail and grouse. It is the abuse of gun shooting—the terrible slaughter committed by pot hunters—that I deplore."

Bow shooting for game this writer recommends from experience:—Before you try to shoot game with the bow you must practice shooting at some kind of mark. For this purpose a target is not recommended, since one who is trained to aim at a large graduated disc, like that of a lawn target, either with gun or bow, can rarely shoot well at birds or other small game. The reason is that in target shooting at fixed distance one gate used to a certain size, color or condition of background, and when he gots into the woods and hits his bow to oraw on a bird or hare his accustomed rings and gay background are not there. His vision is blurred consequently, and he draws waveringly and shoots indifferently. A black rubber ball, four inches in diameter, suspended in mid air by a siring lastened to a low bough of an apple tree makes a first rate substitute for a bird, and a small bag of straw placed on the ground and shot at at about twenty yards gives good hare prescue, you find a low bough of an all ships and the prescuency, you must know how, under all circumstances and over all kin you are very strong and agile you may use one of sixty or savesty pounds draw. Fer rabbit shooting use light but broad headed arrows, sharp pointed and berbed.

Archery clubs in Eugland are generally confined to the wesithy and exclusive classes. Some of the prixes offered at the meetings of the soveral societies having royal and noble patronage are mists magnificent, and the contests for them have developed a high degree of accuracy in shooting. The Woodmen of the Forest of Ardes, one of the oldest clubs, has three prizes exclusively for the lady members. The Hertfordshire Archers offer the lady members. The Hertfordshire Archers offer the lady members a prize of great value and beauty. The Royal Toxophilite Society, under the paironage of the Queen, owns a grand banqueting half in the old English style, situated in the midst of beautifully ornamented grounds. It was The Woodmen of the Forest of Arden who were the first to admit ladies into the circle of their grounds as competitors for their prizes, since which most of the clubs have been honored by the skiliul shooting and charming influence of the lair sex. In the United States the Wabash Merry Bowmen and the Staten Island Club have led the way. The latter have their meetings on a beautiful ground as Islaen Island; the former meet once a week of their own grounds at Crawfordsville, Ind. There is also an excellent club at Newburg, on the Hudson, which meets once a week at the houses of its several members. Intelligent practice Mr. Thompson puts down as the secret of expert and gracelei bowshooting. Study your bow and the flight oil your arrows; note the defects in your shooting and consider new to mend them. If your habit is to shoot too high on the string, and vice everst. If you shoot continually on one side of the centre of the larget note if your string be straight on your bow, and see that you do not place your arrownock too high on twist the bow with your left hand, last at the point of dowing the strong and drawing and consider new to mend them. If yo learn that exercise in the open air and pure light of out of doors is the one thing that will gratily the desire.

A lady should be careful to begis shooting with a very weak bow. A twenty-pound weapon is not too light for the first ments of practice. The act of bracing a bow is likely to produce pain in the right side when first attempted, but a few trials will overcome the difficulty, it she bow is not too long or too strong. Ladies should use the shooting glove, as their fingers are too onlicate to bear the friction of the bow strongs. It is aurprising how rapidly a lady gains atrength under well directed training in archery. She begins a slow-moving, languid haf invaird, and at the end of four weeks of regular practice you see her running across the lawn siter her arrows like Diana pursuing the stags of old, "As soon as ladies have learned the use of bows and arrows," says Mr. Thompson, "they may roam the green fields and shady woods, shooting at tuits of grass or the slender stems of the young trees; nor a drawn bow in the hands of a resolute womap will bring the boldest villain to a halt or to his death if necessary. An arrow from a thirty pound bow with pass entirely through the body of a man-". Ans new we think we have given our readers a pretty good idea of the "witchery of archery." At the back of this book is an appendix containing all the necessary information concerning the selecting and care of archery tackie.
